MORRIS KNOLLS

Opened:	1964
Mascot:	Golden Eagle
School Colors:	Green, Gold and White
Yearbook:	The Talon (Eagle's Claw)
Newspaper:	The Quill
Publication:	Spectrum
Communities:	Rockaway Township & Denville

The first graduating class of 1966 voted on the name of the school, mascot and colors. Students wanted to name the school after President Kennedy who was recently assassinated but was vetoed by school officials. Another choice for the name of the school was Crestmont High.

For the past 50 years, this campus setting has been a special place where thousands of graduates can claim the Knolls as their Alma Mater. Opened in 1964 and built to accommodate approximately 1,000 students, Morris Knolls immediately established itself as a highly reputable secondary school. Starting with a staff of 74, and classrooms numbering 54, Morris Knolls High School expanded rapidly. By 1970, the functional capacity was doubled to 2,100 as a result of a major building addition, including more classrooms, a spacious auditorium, an expanded gymnasium and a second cafeteria.

By the late 1970's, Morris Knolls High School reached its zenith in the size of the student body with almost 2,200 students and professional staff of 150 classroom teachers, support personnel and building administrators. Along with the rapid enrollment growth in the '70s the curriculum was significantly broadened to enrich the educational experience of students. Our work study and vocational technical programs enabled us to provide learning opportunities compatible with the world of work. During that period of time, Morris Knolls affirmed its place as a comprehensive educational institution.

As Morris Knolls High School entered the 1980s, a third major campus improvement was initiated, culminating in the dedication ceremony of Caruso Stadium in 1983. Outdoor athletic facilities were upgraded, a campus beautification program was implemented to maintain the high standards for site and facilities care. The 1980s saw the start of our innovative Gifted and Talented Program, a Freshman Awareness Program, Advance Placement courser, a Peer Listening Program and a host of state and nationally recognized special programs designed to meet the changing needs of our school population.

The 1990s brought dramatic changes in technology and Morris Knolls has kept pace with these changes by adding numerous computer laboratories, course offerings across the curriculum utilizing computers and a variety of computer software.

Entering the new millennium Morris Knolls again moved forward, this time by adding an addition to the building and improving campus facilities. In 2003 MK started construction on a two story science wing. Major renovations included a new gym floor and bleachers, locker and team rooms, tennis courts, new surface for the track, and chairs and carpet for the auditorium. The art and technology departments were also renovated. Construction was completed in 2007.

In 2013 the grass field at Caruso Stadium was replaced with state of the art turf field.

Morris Knolls Property History

by

Vito L. Bianco

The history of Morris Knolls begins with an unlikely source: the elderly William Penn (1644-1718). Penn “was an English Quaker most noted for founding Pennsylvania in 1682. However, before he crossed to the western side of the Delaware, he and the other Quaker proprietors had purchased the rights to West New Jersey from John Lord Berkley sometime after 1674, and to East New Jersey from the estate of Sir George Carteret beginning in 1681.”¹ In the years just prior to his death, William Penn began to locate lands for himself in what would become Morris County.

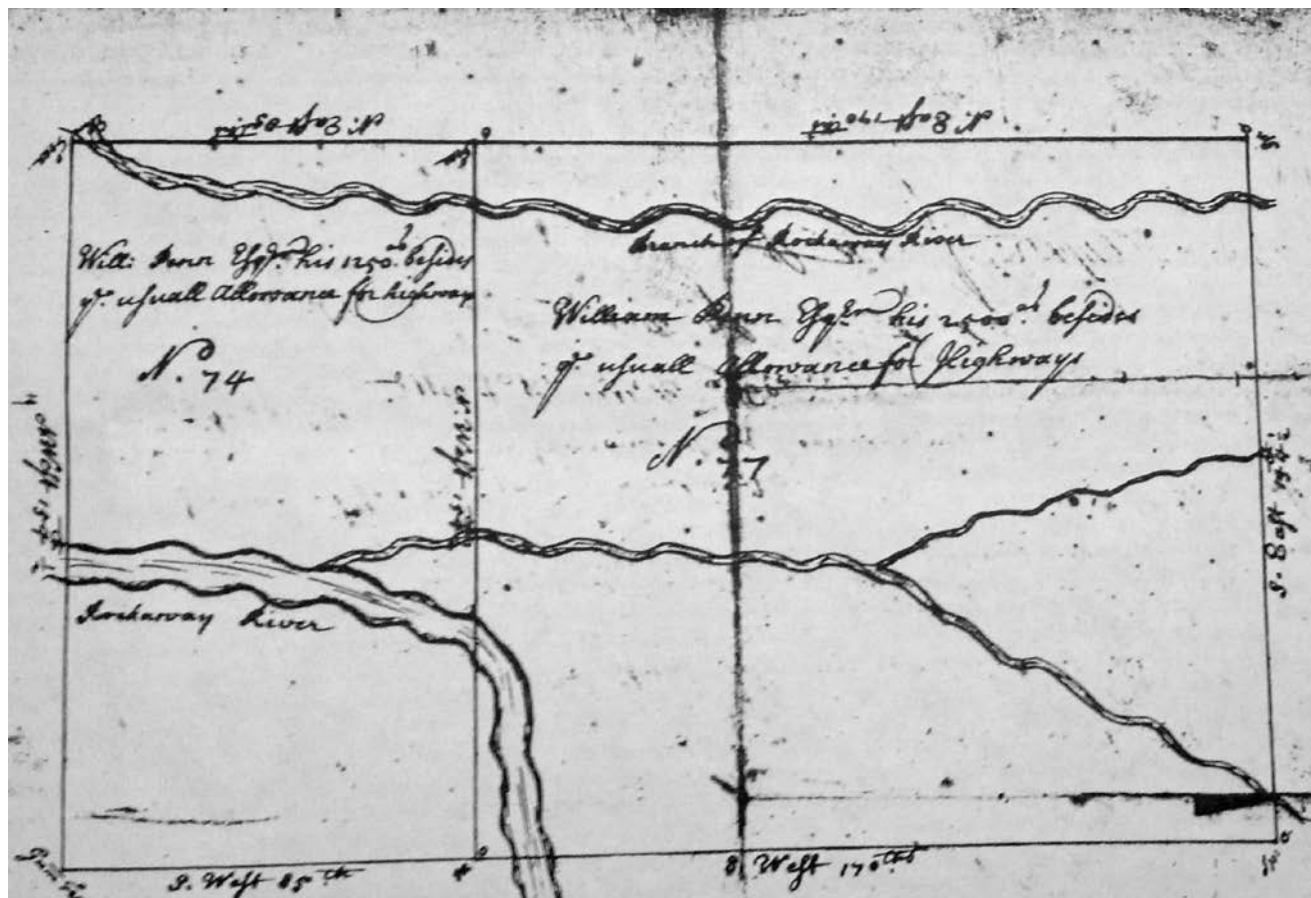

William Penn

“The proprietors’ lands in Morris County were referred to as a new ‘promised land’ [intended to provide] a place of sanctuary and refuge for fellow Quakers.”² The June 14, 1715 survey of William Penn’s lots No. 74 and No. 77 is the earliest-known map of lands now primarily within Denville Township.³

Detail of William Penn's 1715 survey showing lots No. 74 (left), where Morris Knolls would be located, and No. 77 (right), totaling 3,750 acres, most of which is now in Denville.

Together the two lots comprised a total of 3,750 acres. The plotting of Penn's lots shows that the Morris Knolls property was once part of the 1,250 acre tract of Lot No. 74, located near the lot's northern property line.⁴

"After Penn's death in 1718, his two sons began to sell the Quaker lands. At that time, many Philadelphia-based Quaker families began to migrate to Morris County."⁵

The Morris Knolls property likely remained part of a large wooded land-holding for many years. By the mid 19th century, however, detailed maps began to record families living along Franklin Avenue abutting the property. The house closest to where Morris Knolls is today was owned by Josiah Collins (1830-1889). Directly across Franklin Avenue from Collins was Joseph L. Zeak (1821-1911) and his wife Mary C. Genung (1808-1895); next to them was Charles M. Crampton (1808-1889). Further south on Franklin Avenue, on the school side, was John Blanchard (born 1810 or 1818, died 1891); next to him was Elias L. Palmer⁶ (1808-1885), son of Ezekiel and Sally Hall Palmer, and grandson of Jacob and Phebe Palmer, among Denville's earliest settlers. Jacob Palmer was one of Denville's Revolutionary War veterans. He came from Long Island about 1760. He was a forgerman by trade and probably worked at the Franklin Forge on Cooper Road.⁷

⁴ The property claims of the Quaker Proprietors were resurveyed in the 1880s to resolve property disputes. The author used those surveys to determine that the location of the Morris Knolls property was within William Penn's Lot No. 74.

Nothing could be found on the J. Bryant who appears across Franklin Avenue from Elias L. Palmer. Caleb W. Hopler (1845-1914) would appear on a later map⁸ close the Josiah Collins. Into the 20th century, these properties would change hands many times.

In the 1930s, Luigi Susco (1892-1983) purchased a number of acres along Route 46 and Franklin Avenue in Rockaway, and in 1936 re-located his lumber mill there after operating in Rockaway Valley since the end of World War I.

His property abutted the Morris Knolls property where it is believed he had timber rights, and constructed a portable sawmill that was set up until all the timber was cut and harvested.⁹

Luigi Susco cutting timber in the 1940s.

Luigi Susco's daughter, RoseMary (born 1933), lived next the Morris Knolls property from 1936 until she move to Denville in 1957. She recalled that the property was "all woods" and that "there was nothing there."¹⁰

¹⁰ Interview with RoseMary Susco Bianco.

RoseMary Susco in 1947

As a teenager, RoseMary used to sell Christmas cards to the families living along Franklin Avenue on both sides of the road along the Morris Knolls property “up to the entrance to the McWilliams Forge property.” She also remembered picking blackberries all along the Morris Knolls property in the summertime, as far as the railroad bridge on Franklin Avenue.¹¹ In 1953, RoseMary married Vito J. Bianco (born 1932). He went to work at the lumber mill for her father, and the young couple lived upstairs in her father’s house next to the Morris Knolls property for their first four years of marriage.

Vito Bianco recalled walking the Morris Knolls property often. He was taken by its natural beauty and abundance of wildlife, a refreshing change from Brooklyn where he was born and grew up.

Newlyweds, Vito and RoseMary Bianco, 1953

“I used to hunt on the Morris Knolls property,” he recalled. “Once I shot a deer there but I could not carry it back to the mill by myself. Luigi had to drive a truck into the woods and drag the deer back to the mill,” he said. He remembered when the school district purchased the Morris Knolls property in the 1950s. Afterword, Vito watched the progress of the construction of the new high school, as he would pass by the property daily.¹²

While it appears that no significant historical event occurred on the Morris Knolls property, it did play a part in the every day lives of the people living along its roadside. From the property’s distinguished earliest owner to the many who have enjoyed its natural beauty since, the Morris Knolls property shares the common heritage of an area rich in historic value and abundant in simple traditions.

First Musical – Oklahoma

MARCHING BAND

The Morris Knolls Marching Band is a competition ensemble that has seen much success in the USSBA/USBands circuit in past and current years, earning it a reputation as a band of high caliber not only in the state of NJ, but in the nation. Within the past decade the band has achieved much success under the direction of Daniel Schwartz. The band has won the NJ State Championship during the 2003, 2007, 2009 and 2013 seasons. The band won an all Northeast Championship during the 2008 season. The band has continually finished in the Top 5 in the Nation at National Championships from 2006-2013 and won the Silver Medal in 2007 and 2010. The band won the bronze medal in 2012. The Color Guard has also achieved tremendous success having won National Championships during the years 2006, 2007, 2008, 2010, 2012, and 2013. The percussion section was also named National Champions in 2007 and 2012. The Morris Knolls Marching Band was also chosen to perform halftime at Super Bowl XLVIII in 2014.

Morris Knolls HS has been my second home for over 38 years (currently 2015). It was with great pleasure that I put this book together on the 50 years of History of Morris Knolls HS. Teaching and coaching at MK has been an incredible and rewarding experience for me. Morris Knolls is by far the best school that I could ever work for.
